We're thrilled to announce that funding from Cornwall Heritage Trust has helped secure the future of the St Cleer Church Bells.

For centuries the bells of St Cleer have rung out over the village, surrounding farmland and its mining communities of days gone by, a sound which forms a vital part of the community's living heritage.

The bells are now at the stage when a complete restoration is needed to save them from becoming unringable, and it's an honour to play our part in keeping this tradition alive.
